THE Enquirer-Southerner. FRIDAY, NOV. 20, 1874. THE BETTER LANGUAGE

Many and many a year ago, When we old folks were young,
In giving language to our thoughts We used our mother tongue.

But now the age has grown so fast
The old words are forgot, And nothing will grow so now But slang that is red hot.

In those old times we never said Of Joe or Tom or Bill, In speaking of their penmanship,
"He slings a nasty quill."

In speaking of a man of sense,
"His judgment's good," they said, But now they say, "The old sardine Has got a level head."

Once angry words would lead to blows; But now, when "a galoot"
"Gives two much chin," or "puts on feils," We "pate him in the snoot."

In sorrow then they spoke of death, With pale and tremulous lip;
But now, "He's handed in his checks," Or, "The duffer slipped his grip."

Then, as they grasped a friendly hand, They said, "How do you do?" But now, "What have you got that's fresh?" Or, "Well, old chap, what's new?"

Then, "He plays billiards well," we said, Or "he excelled by few;"
But now, "He is not a slouch;"
He shoves a healthy cue.

Once on a time a man danced well—Alas! 'tis no more;
"He's just the boy to shake himself When you boost him on the floor."

A man once used to go to lunch When eating time drew near;
But now he'll "wastle with his hash," Or, "tackle his daily beer."

Old friends at meeting used to pledge Each other in a cup;
But it is, "Here's to yer, Bill!"
And, "George, just hand that up."

Oh, give me back those good old days, When both the old and young Used none but true old-fashioned words, And slang was never sung. E. T.

Sharings.

A head-wind—A sneeze.

A smart thing—A mustard plaster.

Why is a parish bell like a good story? Because it is often told.

Some people show their liberality by their intense willingness to receive.

A horse must be a miserable creature, a his thoughts are always on the rack.

The young lady whose feelings were "all worked up" has ordered a fresh supply.

False calculations is money, or trade, or business, are worse than false friends.

Why is your shadow like a false friend? Because it follows you only in sunshine.

A doctor is wanted in Genoa, Mo.
The latest is now hanging to a chestnutwood tree and wants to get down.

What is the difference between a spendthrift and a feigning fool?
One is hard up and the other soft down.

The kind of whiskey that makes men lie down on railroad tracks is being introduced in nearly every western State.

A clergyman at Paris, Ky., stopped his prayer to lead an unruly man out by the ear, and went on: "As I was saying, O Lord."

The man who sang, "I would not live always, I ask not to stay," thought he could stand one hundred and twenty years if hard pressed.

It is asserted that Austria will make a commercial treaty with Rou-mania without regard to the Grand Turk's protest.

The greatest magicians of the age are the paper-makers; they transform the beggar's rags into sheets for editors to lie on, says a wag.

Lately a Western young lady had occasion to inform a young man that her hand "was not a lemon." He wanted a punch and had the other ingredients.

A woman, in Allegheny, does nothing for a living only wash in daylight and sew for tailors at night.
Some philanthropic person should find something for her to do.

At this city last week a young lady entered a drug store lately and wanted to see the papers for a weak back, and the intelligent clerk showed a roll of sticking plaster.
Look her John, that is heavy.

The sensitive boy lives in Delaware. He arose at midnight, footed it half a mile and awoke a store clerk and bought a fine comb. He didn't want any one to hear him ask for it.

A young lady came to the city, the other day, to have her picture taken. When the artist showed her the "proof" and asked her how she liked it, she placidly remarked that he "put too much mouth on it" to suit her.

"What are you going to do about it?" asked David of a friend who had been smothered up in a railroad disaster and terribly injured. "Well," gasped the injured sufferer, "firstly, I shall go in for repairs; secondly, I shall go in for damages."

A good thing is told of a chap who was charged with assault and battery. When arraigned, the prisoner said: "Gentlemen, you ought to deal easy with me. He called me a d—n rogue and I didn't touch him; he called me a d—n rascal and I didn't touch him; but then he called me a d—n Radical, and gentlemen, I couldn't stand that!"

Importance of Salts in Food.

Mr. Foster has made some interesting experiments on dogs and pigeons, which show that animals suffer and die when inorganic salts are altogether absent from their food although the other nutritive constituents may be abundant. In all the animals tried there was a condition of muscular weakness, tremor, and general exhaustion.
In the dog the muscles of the posterior extremities, from the second week of the experiment onward, gradually assumed a paralytic character, as when the function of the spinal cord is weakened. The activity of the cerebrum was also impaired, as was evident from the bluntness of the senses and apathy of the animal. Later on, increased excitability often appeared; the dogs were terrified at any quick motion; one had a brief attack of madness, but soon recovered from trembling and growling. On being taken out, it ran forward and knocked its head violently against a wall. After the animals had been deprived of salts for some time, the juices of the intestine canal either lost their digestive power or were not secreted in proper quantity, and nutrition was thus interfered with. Death took place, however, from the alterations in the nervous system, before there had been time for it to occur from inanition. The quantity of salts necessary to life is smaller than is generally supposed, but the exact amount required is still to be determined.

The Value of Time.

We shall have come down to the time when we have but ten days left, then nine days, then eight days, then seven days, then six days, five days, four days, three days, two days, one day. Then hours: three hours, two hours, one hour. Then only minutes left: five minutes, four minutes, three minutes, two minutes, one minute.— Then only seconds left: three seconds, two seconds, one second!
Gone! The chapter of life ended!
The book closed! The pulse at rest! The feet through with the journey! The hands closed from all work! No word on the lip.
No breath on the nostril. Hair combed to lie undisturbed by any human hands. The muscle still. The nerves still. The lungs still. "The tongue still. All still. You might put the stethoscope to the breast and hear no sound. You might put a speaking trumpet to the ear, but you could not break the deafness.
No motion. No throb. No life.
Still! Still!

Not a Pleasant Place.

According to all late accounts, Havana must be a charming place of residence just now. Beggaries and murders or not only of nightly, but of daily occurrence. The policemen is unknown in that city, having ceased to exist because the municipality is too poor to pay for such a luxury. Open gambling houses bleed their victims of all ranks and classes night and day without any movement interference.
In fact they are as openly tolerated as they used to be in Baden or Hamburg, and for similar reasons in the form of subsidies to the authorities. Meanwhile the necessaries of life command fatu-ous prices, a pound of wretched beef selling at sixty cents, a chicken at two dollars or two and a half, a pound of coffee a dollar, with bread, vegetables and fruits at proportionate rates. And, apparently, the wise ones look for worse ones coming. A planter—a royal Spaniard at that—who lately had two of his sugar plantations burned and the male slaves on them abstracted by the Cubans, has arrived in the United States, in which he intends to reside henceforth permanently.
His family were about to proceed to Havana, where they usually spent the winter, when they received a message from him instructing them not to dream of returning to Cuba.
"It is no safe place to-day, even for Spaniards," he says.
Americans intending to winter in Havana can form their own conclusions.

The Sharp Man.

The sharp man is mistaken for the wise one, but is just as different from a wise one as he is from a honest one.
He trusts too his cunning for success, and this is the next thing to being a rogue.
The sharp man is like a razor—generally too sharp for anything but a shave.
These men are not to be trusted; they are so constituted that they must cheat somebody, and rather than be idle or lose a good job, they will pitch into their best friends.
They are not exactly outcasts, but live close on the borders of criminality, and are liable to step over any time.
It is but a step from cunning to rascality and it is a short step to lawless invitation to take.
Sharp men have but few friends, and seldom a confident. They learn to fear treachery by studying their own nature.
They are always bizzzy, but like the hornet want a heap of sharp watchings.
The sharp man is always a vain one. He prides himself upon his cunning, and had rather do a shrewd thing than a kind one.—Josh Billings.

A lady, returning from an unprofitable visit to church last Sunday, declared that "when she saw the slaves of those Smiths, and then thought of the things her own girls had to wear, if it wasn't for the consolation of religion she did not know what she should do."

HAVE YOU TRIED JURUBENA.
ARE YOU
Weak, Nervous, or Debilitated?

Are you so Languid that any exertion requires more of an effort than you feel capable of making?
Then try JURUBENA, the wonderful Tonic and invigorant, which acts as a benediction on the secretory organs as to impart vigor to all the vital forces.

It is no short-cut remedy, which stimu-lates for a short time only to let the sufferer fall to a lower depth of misery, but it is a vegetable tonic acting directly on the liver and system.

It regulates the bowels, quiets the nerves, and gives such a healthy tonic to the whole system as to soon make the invalid feel like a new person.

Its operation is not violent, but is characterized by great gentleness; the patient experiences no sudden change, no marked results, but gradually his troubles —Fold their wings, like the Arabs, And silently steal away.

This is no new and untried discovery, but has been long used with wonderful remedial results, and is pronounced by the highest medical authorities, the most powerful tonic and alterative known.
